

Services for Victims of Human Trafficking in Washington

If you:

- Are being exploited by your employer.
- Are afraid to leave a work or commercial sex situation.
- Know someone who is being exploited.
- Think you may be a trafficking victim, or if you know someone who might be a trafficking victim.

There are service providers who can help. These agencies are non-profit organizations with the sole purpose of helping people who have been victimized or exploited by others.

What can they help me with?

- They can help you develop a plan to leave an exploitive employer or situation.
- They can work with you to access food, clothing, shelter, education and good doctors.
- They can help you understand all your rights and options.
- If needed, they can help you understand the criminal justice system.
- They can advocate for your rights with government agencies, police, prosecutors, defense attorneys and judges.
- They can provide support and guidance as you work to overcome exploitation or victimization.

Do I have to pay? How can I be sure it's safe to call them?

- Services are 100% confidential. What you say to the service providers will be kept completely private.
- These agencies are not the police or immigration. They will not contact the police unless you ask.
- Their services are FREE; you don't have to pay money for their services.
